Prepare to Attempt Recapture of Trondheim

NAZIS CONFIDENT

Claim They Are Holding Their Gains in Norway

STOCKHOLM — (AP) — Reports reaching here from the Norwegian frontier said Thursday it was only a question of hours before the Norwegian attack started against German positions in the Trondheim district. Swedish newspaper correspondents said the Norwegians were concentrated at Steinkjer, on the inner part of Trondheim fjord, at a railroad junction connecting with Namsos.

Nazis Claim Successes
BERLIN — (AP) — Germany declared Thursday her forces, repelling Britain on land, in the air and at sea were steadily strengthening their grip on Norway, political as well as military.

Authorized sources said Norwegian King Haakon had recognized the provisional government commission set up in the German-occupied areas of his kingdom.

Although he acknowledged the regime merely as an administrative committee, he said it was accepted here as a legally constituted government.

Official reports, meanwhile, said German troops above the Arctic circle had captured Norwegian prisoners among them the commander of Bardufoss airport, northeast of Narvik, in a drive to the Swedish border.

DNB declared emphatically the Germans hold Narvik "and are in possession not only of the harbor, but of the city."

DNB said not even were British naval forces sighted in the waters off Narvik.

Allies' Guarantee
LONDON — (AP) — Prime Minister Chamberlain Thursday gave assurance against any allied menace to South-eastern European nations, while in the North Britain's forces by land, sea and air fought to break Germany's hold on Norway.

Chamberlain told the House of Commons that British envoys to South-eastern European nations had left or were leaving for their posts after some nine days at London conferences on "outstanding problems" there.

"No one of these states has any cause to fear the Allies or their forces will ever threaten their independence or integrity."

In the North, the air ministry announced two air raids on Stavanger, German-occupied Norwegian port, Wednesday, during night and day, extended aerial operations in which Stavanger also was bombed by British warships.

Naval Maneuvers
BUCHAREST — (AP) — Warships of five powers maneuvered under secret orders within striking distance of the Dardanelles Wednesday night as the small neutral nations of south-eastern Europe reinforced their defenses and moved to stamp out Nazi influences within their borders.

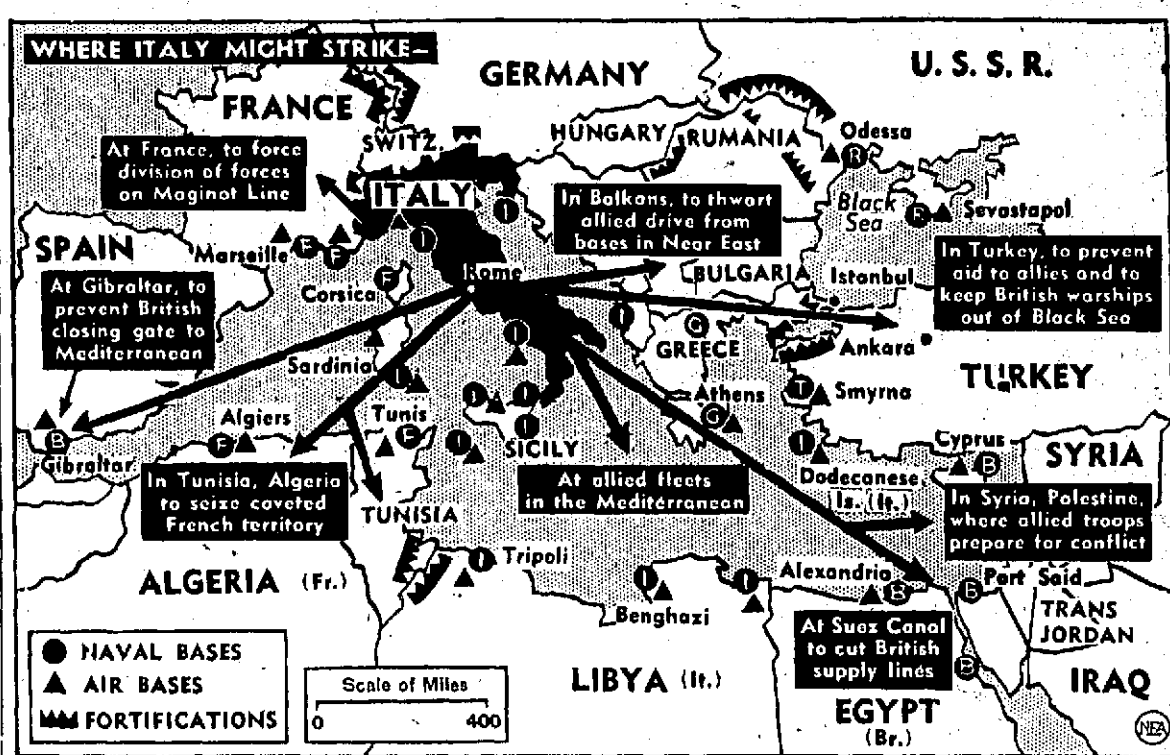

The Turks held the Dardanelles straits, focal point of the naval activity spreading through the Aegean and Black seas. The neutrals fear this activity may foreshadow spread of the war.

Allied naval units off the Greek coast were reported to have taken secret "counter measures" after the Italian fleet assembled in the Aegean for what Italy has called customary spring maneuvers.

Led by the battle cruiser Yavuz, part of the Turkish fleet took up positions in the sea of Marmara near Gallipoli, where, in the last war, the Turks broke a great British assault.

Neutral shipping men reported the Russian navy had laid hundreds of mines and was busy laying more in the month.

Speed-Up of WPA Spending Is Asked

F. D. Would Spend Year's Allotment in Eight Months

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt proposed Thursday that Congress accept the budget recommendation of $975,000,000 for the WPA in the next fiscal year, but grant him or her the WPA commissioner authority to expend the entire sum in eight months if necessary.

Roosevelt wrote the speaker of the house if the $975,000,000 were spread over 12 months it would provide an average employment of only about 1,330,000.

The president said his budget estimate had based on hopes for improved employment and business but those hopes had not been entirely realized.

Senator Miller Is Rumored Judge

One of 3 Arkansas Jurists May Be Elevated

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — The Arkansas Democrat said Thursday reports "entirely unconfirmed" are being circulated in political circles that, if either Federal Judge Heartsill Ragon, or Federal Judge T. C. Trimble of Little Rock, is elevated to a position on the Eight Circuit Court of Appeals, Senator John E. Miller might be named to fill the vacancy on the Arkansas district bench.

Three Mentioned
WASHINGTON — (AP) — Names of three Arkansasans were being mentioned here Wednesday in connection with speculation that the president would appoint an Arkansas and a North Dakotan to the two additional judgeships for the eighth circuit court of appeals provided by a bill passed Tuesday by the Senate.

Representative Gwynne (R-Iowa), a member of the sub-committee which drafted the bill, said he "wouldn't be surprised if the two appointments went to North Dakota and Arkansas."

District Judge Heartsill Ragon of Fort Smith, senior member of the federal judiciary in Arkansas, was mentioned as a possibility for a recommendation from Arkansas' two senators Senator John E. Miller was out of town and Senator Hattie Caraway did not disclose her views.

Arkansas circles here recalled Attorney Al Mehan of Stuttgart is a close friend of Senator Miller who recently urged him for a district judgeship.

District Judge T. C. Trimble of Little Rock was suggested as another possibility.

Dutch Warn Japs Hands Off Indies

U. S. Statement Draws Another From Holland Itself

HAGUE — (AP) — The Netherlands government informed Japan it would neither ask any foreign government to protect the Netherlands East Indies in the case the war should spread to Holland nor accept an offer of protection if it were made, it was announced Thursday.

There was no official comment on a statement by United States Secretary of State Hull insisting "the interests of many countries" would be affected by any attempt to intervene in the affairs of the Indies.

Washington — (AP) — President Roosevelt expressed the hope Thursday the status quo in the whole Pacific area could be maintained in the interests of peace.

He stated his view to his press conference when asked for comment on Secretary Hull's statement Wednesday that disturbance of the status quo would prejudice of the Netherlands' Indies, but in the entire Pacific area.

Roosevelt told reporters Hull's declaration covered the situation thoroughly.

But consider the alternatives in this picture. Suppose the allies stand up to Mussolini. He can cut off some of their best lines of communication, but they have others. He can attack them by land—but so can the allies attack Italy.

Italy's African holdings are especially vulnerable. Franco-British troops, already strong on the Dark Continent, would join forces with the Union of South Africa. The Arabs and Egyptians could be depended upon to send some contingents.

And in Europe? Italian invasion of France, even with German help, would be far more difficult than a French attack on Italy because of topography.

Italy might try bombing French cities. But the allies, too, have an air force, and Italian cities are more easily reached than French. Besides, Rome, Genoa and Naples would be targets for allied warships.

Winston Churchill says the allies already have enough battleships in the Mediterranean. They may soon have more. For they have whittled down German naval strength. They may soon be indisputably in command of the northern seas. The only thing that might tie up the British in the north is the Nazi mine and plane menace, for some undisclosed reason not yet fully committed to battle.

Spain's General Franco might way-laid British naval reinforcements. British naval reinforcements at Gibraltar—if France feels like another war. It is known that Spain has taken some military measures.

Maybe Mussolini Has Gun at His Head
The whole, complex series of operations would depend on split-second timing and totalitarian co-ordination. It would also depend on allied involvement in a Scandinavian campaign that may yet prove to have been launched by Hitler as no more than a diversion from the even more serious business at hand.

Italy, especially, would have to make a coup come off like clock-work. Her people want no war, and the campaign would have to be a short one.

She has virtually no access to wartime economic necessities—coal, iron or oil.

Must Join Nazis, Throw Bluff, Sell Out to the Allies

Did Hitler Threaten Mussolini at Alps Pass?

HE MIGHT ATTACK

Could Strike at Allies' Asian Army, or France

By THOMAS M. JOHNSON
NEA Service Military Writer
From Oslo to Armageddon seems a shorter step today than yesterday. The clash of arming nations rises in crescendo from the Low Countries, the Alps, from Istanbul to Italy getting ready to bring the war into the Mediterranean and the Balkans—to drive a stiletto into Britain and France? Or is she merely preparing to let off a scare-bomb?

She can easily do, the latter. With her speedy navy, her myriad submarines and planes, she can: (1) threaten to cut the Mediterranean line of communications between allies and the Near Eastern army; (2) menace Britain's bottleneck and Turkey's Dardanelles, through which allied ships and troops might have access to the Balkans.

But if Mussolini is indeed convinced he could springboard his troops from Albania, Yugoslavia, willing, and with the conceivable assistance of Hungary and Russia, beat Rumania into bloody bits.

Italian forces in Africa already threaten Egypt, Tunis and other Franco-British outposts. Italy might even have a whack at France herself, perhaps at the moment Axis Partner Hitler begins his Big Drive against the Maginot Line.

These threats might make potential allies for the French and British—Rumania, Greece, Yugoslavia—stand against. Even Turkey might be inclined to play ball with Il Duce, edge away from the allies and look up the Dardanelles. Should this happen, the allies would be faced either with forcing Turkey to open the gates, or buying off Mussolini at a stiff price. Mussolini is hoping, of course, that the allies will choose the latter course.

Duce Might Get Burned
But consider the alternatives in this picture. Suppose the allies stand up to Mussolini. He can cut off some of their best lines of communication, but they have others. He can attack them by land—but so can the allies attack Italy.

Hope Census, However, Is Not Complete as Yet

There have already been 79 names turned in to the Chamber of Commerce of those who have not been visited by the census takers in response to the notice in Wednesday's Star, Hope chamber of commerce announced Thursday.

The chamber of commerce has been informed that the census is still incomplete and it will require several days yet to finish the work, but everyone who has not yet been visited is urged to report, so that their names can be printed.

This is not intended to reflect in any way on any of the census takers but to help them get every single person in Hope counted. No one should be left out. It will take a complete count to raise our population over the 7,000 mark.

Governor Charges Depression Builds Political Power

"Quack Statesmen" Perpetuating Depression, He Says

ARE AFTER JOBS

Blistering Attack Made by Bailey at Cleveland

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Employing blunt words, Gov. Carl E. Bailey of Arkansas charged here Thursday that certain "quack statesmen" in Washington had a direct interest in perpetuating depression conditions in order to perpetuate themselves in "public" jobs and places of power.

Asserting that he spoke dispassionately and without rancor, Bailey said in a prepared address before the National Petroleum association convention in plain language "we are challenged by the drift of American government away from constitutional and democratic ideals."

The Arkansas governor directed his attack upon concentration of authority in the federal government; in a discussion of what he described as "pollution of constitutional processes" not by elected public servants, but by irresponsible appointed beneficiaries of political patronage, unidentified to the public, working behind unmarked doors.

He said he referred to bureaucrats and that "as a matter of political patronage, some congressmen, senators or maybe the president or vice president gave them their appointments."

"The irresponsible bureaucrats have a vested interest in depression," he said. "When depression ends, their jobs on public payrolls end likewise."

Relief policies, he said, had been palliative rather than curative.

The Year 1933
"With the advent of the year 1933, he said, naming the year in which the Roosevelt administration took office, "there arose what appeared to be the sunshine of a new hope—the announcement by national leadership of a purpose to alleviate the agonies of economic maledictions by the use of the federal government's powers to destroy special privilege and monopoly. There was an implication that federal spending and lending was for the purpose of alleviating the social and economic pains of the people while the processes of diagnosing and correcting fundamental faults were set in motion. There was a definite feeling that purification of national policy would attend and supped palliation of immediate pain and thus turn the course of our economic life back into the constitutional channels of free enterprise."

"When an individual finds himself all and in pain, he expects his doctor to apply drugs for the temporary relief of the pain. While thus relieved from the extremity of present agony, he expects his doctor to diagnose his condition and prescribe sound treatment."

"The quack doctor does not diagnose and prescribe sound treatment. He allows the pain to recur so he can make a drug addict of his patient. Thus every fiber of the patient's self-respect and independence is rotted out, and he pays perpetual tribute to the creature that destroys him."

Political Objective
"It appears to me that it is the obvious purpose of certain 'quack' statesmen in Washington to perpetuate the palliations of economic and social pain for the similar purpose of making the people of the United States political drug addicts. The outward manifestations of this disposition are to be found in numerous practices and policies of bureaus and agencies of the federal government and in proposed and newly-enacted legislation."

Among such legislation he mentioned the pending bill in congress to give the secretary of interior authority over oil and gas conservation and production, a proposal Bailey described as "Fascistic and terrifying."

"Even if oil and gas were being wasted by the choice of the people," said Bailey, "I contend that no one man and no one group of men have any right to proceed further than to attempt to educate and persuade the people not to commit such waste."

Of the campaign against special privilege and monopoly, he commented:

"Today special privilege and monopoly have not been terminated. They simply have been transferred to irresponsible bureaucrats and 'quack' statesmen who are using them for the creation of patronage and paternalism. Instead of economic royalists, we now have bureaucratic royalists."

Bailey charged inequities existed in regulations of the social security board, described its "merit system" as

SERIAL STORY K. O. CAVALIER BY JERRY BRONDFIELD

COPYRIGHT, 1940
NEA SERVICE, INC.

YESTERDAY, Eddie and Val came from their capture, but the Northern Belle. They and Mike Kelly fled up on deck, and the stranger in the hold, trying to escape, the machine. There is a light, several shots. When it is over, and the stranger captured, Val notices Mike unconscious on the floor, a pool of blood around his head.

CHAPTER XIX

THE acrid smell of gunpowder filled the room and made Val cough. She stared with horror at Mike Kelly lying there, inert. And then Steve Hansen was marching them all up on deck.

Barney MacGregor, with two policemen in tow, was dashing up the gangplank.

"We heard shots," Barney yelled. "What's up, Steve?"

Grimly, Steve Hansen explained. Then they returned to the hold and carried Mike tenderly up on deck.

One of the officers bent down and made a hurried examination. "This man isn't hurt as bad as you think. Must have been hit by a ricochete. Lullet that glanced off his temple."

A vast feeling of relief swept over Val. Good old Mike. With some quick medical attention he'd be all right.

Then for the first time she felt herself trembling. She covered her eyes with her hands. Steve Hansen went over and put an arm around her shoulders.

"I think you've had enough for one night," he said gently.

VAL leaned over the rail in the early morning sun and watched the huge cranes swing aboard the Northern Belle and dip deep into her hold. Steve Hansen, puffing on his pipe alongside her, followed every foot of the journey with hawk-like eyes. When the crane swung out with the Halliday mining machinery.

Val sighed when it was deposited on the dock and transferred to a huge truck which the company had sent down. "That's a relief," she said.

Hansen nodded. "Yeah, . . . but it's too bad we can't prove those yeggs were agents of that line. We know it, of course, but proving it is something else. It's next to impossible. Only satisfaction we have is knowing our playmates of last night will get themselves a nice long stretch for robbery, attempted vandalism, and a few more lumps."

"They're lucky it wasn't murder," said Val. "And Mike Kelly is lucky he has a nice, thick skull."

Hansen grinned. "Look at 'im down there. You'd never know he came within a quarter of an inch of cashing in his chips."

They didn't know Pop Grimes was behind them until the trainer spoke. "Unless you folks have serious objections," he said, "Eddie and me are going to do a little honest-to-goodness road work this afternoon. About a couple of hours outside of town."

"Good," said Val. "I'll go along."

"We ain't walkin', miss, we're runnin'," Pop reminded her casually.

"What's to prevent me from renting a car and driving along behind you?"

Pop shrugged. "You win, as usual. We're starting out a couple of hours after lunch, so have your auto ready."

She invited Duffy Kelso to come along, but he refused. "Thanks," he said, "you've got me believin' it's safest to be where you ain't. And for the luvva Pete, make sure you don't run 'em down."

THAT afternoon, for the first time since she left San Francisco, Val wore a dress. Instead of slacks and shirt. She put on low-heeled shoes and slipped into a beige camel-hair jigger-coat.

"Where's the party?" Steve Hansen inquired. Eddie Cavalier didn't say anything, but she saw the look of startled surprise on his face.

"That's to remind you she's still a lady," Duffy Kelso observed, but Val gave no sign she had heard.

Yet, she admitted to herself as they swung off down the dock, Duffy had been partly right. Clever man, in his way, was Duffy Kelso. Too bad he was soured on her so. She couldn't help chuckling at the thought of it. He certainly had a right to be.

She could picture Duffy, once they got back to San Francisco. He'd probably try to put an insurmountable barrier between her and Cavalier. Refuse to see her. Make her get her stories second-hand. Make it tough for her in every way imaginable.

Well, she'd had her innings. Rather riotous ones, at that. Anyway, she had a hunch that Eddie Cavalier wouldn't be too difficult to reach despite Duffy Kelso. It was just a hunch, but Val Douglas always placed a lot of faith in her hunches.

She asked a policeman where she could rent a car and he directed her to a garage a couple of blocks away from the main business section.

She climbed behind the wheel of a shiny blue coupe. It was good to drive again. She slipped through the noonday traffic and headed back for the waterfront. Parking the car as close as possible to the Northern Belle, she boarded the ship.

She was just in time for lunch. "Give you a break," she said to Pop Grimes. "I'll drive you out to the other side of town when you're ready to go."

"Thanks,"

"Of course," she lied for Duffy's benefit. "I haven't driven in almost a year, but I think we can stay out of the ditches and avoid the telephone poles."

It was perfect bait. Duffy let out a welp. "Stay out that car," he ordered Eddie. "She'll get you killed yet."

Eddie grinned. "Calm yourself, Duffy. Can't you see she's just needing you?"

Duffy Kelso glared and put his fork down disgustedly. "Well, anyway, she killed my appetite."

VAL found that following behind Eddie and Pop as they jogged along the Skeena River road was a little too slow. She practically had to stay in second gear all the time. It was too boring to suit her.

She honked the horn and drew alongside. "See you snails farther down the road."

She roared off in a cloud of dust. "Didn't think she'd last long," Pop grunted. "She just ain't used to staying in the same spot for a long time."

The sun had been shining brightly, but now it moved behind a dark cloud which came up from the northwest. Val hummed to herself as the car purled along the country road. And then it happened. There was a loud report and when the car moved sluggishly toward the side of the road she knew she had a flat.

She got out and looked at the tire with dismay. There was a spare in back, but who was going to change it? She looked up and down the road. There wasn't a house in sight. Nor a gasoline station. Nor any sign of another car. She climbed behind the wheel and sat there dejectedly.

It was a half hour before she glanced into the rear view mirror and saw Eddie and Pop come over a slight rise in the road. She breathed a sigh of relief.

"Am I glad to see you," she said. "Look what I've got."

She didn't see Eddie nudge Pop Grimes slyly.

"Gee, that's tough," he murmured. "Well—if we come to a garage or gas station we'll send back a mechanic."

And they left her standing there as they jogged off.

Governor Charges

a "mystical banner" under which "The sovereign people of all the sovereign states have been told that unless they surrender their right to select and discharge the employees who are to serve them and repose that right in the social security board, then the aged will be allowed to starve, crippled children will be denied the benefits of surgical science, the money collected from the citizens to provide income for unemployed workmen will be withheld . . ."

Bailey's Attack

Bailey said there were 900,000 employees of state and local governments and an equal number of federal employees, asserting:

"If, through subversive administrative policies and legislation, any bureau, man or agency in Washington can have control of the tenure compensation of this nearly 2,000,000 public employees to the exclusion of the people, then there will have been developed a ruling class—or in any event the most fearful pressure group in the history of government among men."

"Whether this is a by-product or an objective of present national policies, the result is the same, and it is un-American and a challenge to those of us who believe in American constitutional government."

Bailey, life-long democrat, said in conclusion he was "not anti anything," and disclaimed any purpose to give aid or comfort "to any organized political party other than the democratic party."

"I want to be sure, however," he said, "that the leadership of my party is not the proponent of state capitalism."

"I want to be certain that free enterprise will be protected and perpetuated by the leadership of my party. I want the policies and practices of my party to be formulated by democrats—not by 'quack' statesmen. Then it will support and promote the spirit of the declaration of independence and the constitution of the United States."

Tough on Trophies

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. —(AP)—Indiana championships as well as any athletes do but they just can't seem to get much good out of their trophies.

For instance, The relay quartet, bringing home its distance medley trophy won at the Butler Relays found the runner atop it had been snapped off in transit. The player atop the big N. C. A. A. national basketball championship trophy was broken off during a home-coming reception for the team.

Reclamation

This I shall do:
For love's sweet sake:
Plant growing things
Where nothing grew:
Cyclamen whose flaming wings
Take flight,
And flowering springs of yew;
This I shall do.
And for no reason,
Save that some breathing thing
Should grow
To mark the changing of the season—
Swollen bud or plume of snow.
Something should bend
When a wind is blowing;
Something should drink
Of the crystal rain.
I have a horror of nothing growing
In human heart or open plain.

Preakness Grows Up Fast

BALTIMORE —(AP)— Little more than 20 years ago the Preakness at Fimlico track here was a sectional race for Maryland's best three-year-olds. Now it ranks with the Kentucky Derby as the best of American races. It is an older race than the Derby, a shorter one and a slightly less valuable one. In 1919 the Preakness purse was jumped to $25,000 and in 1922 to $50,000. It is worth around $60,000 now.

Speedy U. S. Planes to Go to the Allies

American Combat Ships Capable of 400 Miles Per Hour

By THOMAS M. JOHNSON
NEA Service Military Writer

The Yanks may not be coming, but their planes are.

The word reaching Europe may well change the course of the war. News that American combat planes that can fly 400 miles an hour will soon be shipped to the allies may bring on the world's greatest air battles—battles that will decide the outcome of the war in the north.

Germany apparently has lost so much naval strength already that she must resist Franco-British naval superiority mainly through her formidable air force. Air bombing attacks are now the greatest threat to allied control of the seas.

Should the allies lose that control, then from western Norway the Nazis could not only bomb Scotland and northern Britain, but after that bombing had sunk enough British warships, they could invade Scotland.

Best Defense Also Aircraft

Against that danger the allies' best defense is also aircraft, and they have not enough.

The French especially have considerably fewer than the Germans, but with today's news from this country the allies can draw on their reserves, knowing they will be reinforced at least equaling anything in quality the Germans have.

But before these reinforcements can arrive the Germans will be likely to shoot the works. Audacity—always a Frenchman's word—has just been put into astounding deed, first by Germans and now by Britons.

For Churchill is gambling little less than Hitler.

The British ships that steamed into Oslo harbor to cut the main troop ferry for the Nazi invasion of Norway certainly took a risk.

They dared mines and torpedoes in the narrow seas. To stay they dared attack by Germany's capital ships and airplanes.

Yet the British allowed these foe-men more time by postponing shelling Oslo to save its civilians.

But the risks the British take are those calculated risks that must be taken in a war so deadly as this new war in the north, and in this region Britain's stakes are more vital than anywhere on the continent save the low countries.

Once let Germany establish herself on the western Norwegian coast 300 North Sea miles from Scotland and her submarines and planes could attack British commerce, naval bases and cities with a violence and persistence to make previous raids look like a peck on the cheek.

Right now spring weather is removing two protections Britain has enjoyed all winter—a 40-mile head wind and a thick, low-lying cloud bank.

If German bombers can whittle down the British fleet, German transports could bear troops across those 300 miles from Norway to invade Scotland.

The British must show audacity along that whole 1000-mile Norwegian seacoast before the Germans can link hands with larger and probably mechanized armored forces trying to push northward.

Warships attacking fixed land fortifications always are handicapped, but the British cannot too miserly count the cost. They are fighting primarily not to gain Norway as a springboard to invade Germany, but to push Germany off a springboard whence she might invade Britain.

The British have their backs to the wall—in effect, that seawall that hitherto has been their rampart. But the wall may best be defended from the air by the Yanks' planes that now at the crucial moment are coming.

Yerger Prepares for District Meet

Livestock Judging Contest to Be Held at McCaskill

The students of the vocational department of the Yerger High School, after having been drilled in livestock and field crop judging techniques for sometime, were given an elimination contest to determine the four most efficient judges of livestock and field crops.

The elimination contest was conducted by the local vocational instructor, J. A. Harris, his assistant, Eddie Brown, and two trainers, R. L. Richards and T. E. Woods Jr.

The winners of the contest are as follows: N. D. Doss, first place; Wilma Harris, second place; Pink Carrigan, third place; Trenton Cooper, fourth place.

These students will make up the Yerger High School judging team and will participate in the district meet held at McCaskill, Arkansas, April 19.

Amos Henry, president of the local N. F. A. chapter, will represent his organization in an original oration entitled, "The Negro in American Agriculture."

W. C. Easter, A. J. Peggie, C. L. Flenoy, and Thomas English will represent the local N. F. A. chapter in the quartet singing contest.

Whassis Vehicle Conquers Snowdrifts

PINE BLUFFS, Wyo.—(AP)—Kenneth Smith, of the south star mail route, has "crossed" a truck with a passenger car, added airplane tires and produced a contraption which conquers the deep snowdrifts out his way.

He cut down the chassis of a truck to passenger car size, added a sedan body and placed lowpressure airplane tires 15 inches in diameter and 42 inches high under it. Driver of ordinary cars and trucks who have tried to follow Smith's trail say the machine is a real "snowdrift buster." It will go through drifts where the car with tires of ordinary size sink to the running boards.

The second largest desert area in the world is in the interior of Australia.

ALL ABOUT BABIES

By RICHARD ARTHUR BOLT,
 M. D., Dr. P. H.
 Secretary, Maternal and Child Health
 Section of American Public Health Association

Right Diet Important in Pregnancy

The prospective mother needs to pay special attention to personal hygiene. More than ever before she should give strict attention to diet, bathing, sleeping, exercise, recreation and elimination. Her doctor will outline her daily routine, but it will be her responsibility to see that it is all carried out faithfully. If she knows something about the normal functions of the body and what she may expect during pregnancy it will be a great help in following good health habits.

The diet is of primary importance to the expectant mother. The food which the mother takes must not only fulfill her daily needs as to calories, protein, minerals, vitamins, etc., but must be so balanced as to meet the needs of the unborn baby.
 Strictly considered, it is not necessary for the mother to eat for two if she has an ample, well-balanced diet herself. The foods taken must provide for growth and repair, must give sufficient energy, must be protective against the deficiency diseases and must promote regular elimination. Water is very important for regulation and should be taken in such quantities as the doctor advises.

The foods which are basic to good nutrition may be listed as follows:
 Milk up to one quart a day should be taken in some form.

Fresh and stewed fruits may be taken daily and some of the citrus fruits should be included.

Vegetables, especially the colored ones, cooked and uncooked, are desirable and should be eaten daily.

Whole grain breads and cereals are to be preferred to refined foods.
 If the mother is given an ample,
 well-balanced diet with all the food elements and vitamins, it will not be necessary to resort to the more costly refined foods and vitamins which in any case should be prescribed only by her physician.

The teeth of many women are more susceptible to decay during pregnancy and should therefore receive the early care of a dentist and be periodically examined for defects. The proper care of the breasts should be emphasized as a prelude to successful breast feeding.

The mental attitude of the prospective mother toward her pregnancy is of considerable importance. She should be impressed that a calm mind free from worry and fear should be cultivated. Harmony within the family and the banishment of superstitious fears will do much toward a happy outcome of pregnancy.

Grain of Kindness for Old Dobbin

KANSAS CITY —(AP)— There's a $10,000 trust fund in Kansas that assures "needy horses" of a free Christmas dinner of oats.

The fund was set up by the late Mrs. Emma W. Robison of Olathe.
 Each horse is allowed one bushel.
 In 1937, 250 bushels of oats were purchased but only 150 needy horses could be found. Since then the humane society has been able to dispose of about 200 bushels each Christmas.

HOUSTON, Tex. —(AP)—A $7,259 damage suit was settled here for $300 and a can of tomatoes.

The plaintiff alleged a finance com-him in the presence of neighbors.

 He also complained the agent drove away with a can of tomatoes in the car.

The finance company settled for $300.15. The 15 cents was to buy an-

Training Corrects Army's Weakness

General Finds New Set-up Correct's Great Weakness

By THOMAS M. JOHNSON
NKA Service Military Writer

NEW YORK — The country looks toward its army today and it asks a question:

Are these marching men just "fronting for an antiquated organization, ill-prepared to defend us and our democracy?"

The question first arose with deadly urgency eight months ago. Then, as the lightning struck Poland, the reports of our large-scale maneuvers at Plattsburg, N. Y., burst upon the country.

Our army had revealed unpreparedness that was "deplorable and unacceptable," in the words of Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum, who directed the maneuvers. Those words aroused the country, and today it asks:

"What has the army been doing since Plattsburg?"

New Army Era follows Plattsburg.

General Drum, from his headquarters at Governor's Island, New York, from where he commands the country's most vital area, the mines, industries, financial centers of the northeast, makes this reply:

"For the army the Plattsburg revelations ended old era and began a new.

"The army has been giving itself a ruthless going-over; a 'course of sprouts.' It has been marching—faster and farther than ever in peacetime. It has increased its numbers by 25 per cent while modernizing and streamlining its methods.

"Grouping some 70,000 regulars into six new-type divisions, the army has sent them south for intensive field training. It has given its National Guard extra training in field and armory.

"Such training corrects the most glaring weakness Plattsburg revealed—that the army didn't know how to fight. The guard, and even the regulars, needed to learn the 'mechanism of battle'—just how under complex modern conditions, to advance, hold ground, maintain liaison, supply and command.

"But the army is learning as I can see wherever I go. It is many times better organized than at the corresponding stage in World War I."

U. S. Could Mobilize Rapidly Today

April 1917, found us without a single organized division. Our flung-together units took a year and more to enter battle.

Today many guard divisions would take only three months, though others, this writer believes, would take up to nine months. Most of the regulars would take much less, although corps and army staffs are still being improvised.

"That's a tight bottleneck," said General Drum. "But we are infinitely better off than before Plattsburg, or in 1917. Our artillery was so meager we didn't even take it to France. We had practically no combat airplanes and a handful of combat pilots.

"Today we have over 2,000 planes and an industry capable of much larger production. We could almost completely equip a million men, but you wouldn't want your boy to be a soldier with such equipment, for it is mostly 1918 model.

"Since Plattsburg there has been a great speedup in producing some very fine new weapons. The troops have not yet received them in great numbers, and must learn to use them. To have a modernized, well-trained army of not a million called for by our present plans, will take until 1942. Should events force further expansion, plans are ready. They have been worked out by the Army Industrial College, which was organized in 1917.

Army Refortifies Outlying Defenses

"While reorganizing the army, the general staff also has been building around the country a rampart of protective outworks that were badly needed for our own defense and that of the Western Hemisphere. It has strengthened Panama and Hawaii, is fortifying Puerto Rico and Alaska.

"The greatest accomplishment," General Drum concluded, "is that our people have become more actively conscious of an interest in their army and its needs.

"We see it in the successful recruiting campaigns of the regular army and the National Guard; in the increased interest by reserve officers and R. O. T. C. that have given us a further reserve of trained manpower that makes a total of upward of a half million. This spirit is further emphasized by the willingness

Bruner Will Meet Texarkana Team

Game Scheduled for Friday Night at Fair Park

County Avenue Cleaners, city softball champions of Texarkana, will invade Hope Friday night for a game with Bruner-Ivory, it was announced.

The cleaner boys have a strong team and are given the edge in the game, it reports from Texarkana are true.

Bruner defeated Murry Service station of Prescott Tuesday night by a lopsided score of 12 to 2. Murry defeated Bruner in the final round of the district softball tournament last year.

Bruner-Ivory has had their share of ups and downs. Two years ago they won the district championship and went to Little Rock with high hopes. As fate would have it they drew the strongest team in the state, Joe Felton's Cafe. And pitching against them was about the fastest in the world, the famous King Kong Kelley.

Last year Bruner was playing in the district tournament and was defeated in the finals after two games which were very much under their caliber of softball.

"Guilty, yer honor," said O'Callaghan with Dublin accent.

"I'm a hum'by trade and I've roamed the world and never a better town than Butte have I seen. It's the finest in the land and the people are the finest outside of Ireland, Your Honor, sir."

"It looks like you're trying to talk yourself into staying here about 30 or 60 days," said Judge Louis Buckley, scratching his chin.

"No, Judge, Your Honor," said O'Callaghan. "I've had my fun and I'll be on my way. Let somebody else enjoy this fine town."

O'Keefe said the same sentiments were his, too.

Defendants O'Callaghan and O'Keefe went their way.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nerve backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Who Should Get Wings?

DENVER —(AP)—Medical science still seeks an answer to the question of "what makes a good airplane pilot tick?"

"Is a tall, husky man a better pilot than a short, slender man?" asked Dr. Michael L. Mason of the Northwestern University Medical School at a Denver medical meeting.

"Is one type of man better qualified to fly at an altitude of 25,000 feet than another man?"

"I suppose some of the answers will be obtained through the trial and error method."

He said the answers would simplify

To the Farmers of Hempstead County

For thirty years we have been selling you the best seed you could buy, corn, rye and oats. We have taken a great deal of care to see that these seeds are good. The past few years many seeds have been sold in Hempstead County purporting to be our seed that were not. We have always tried to maintain a reasonable price on our seed.

In December, last, we sold a farmer $4,000 worth of drain tile, and agreed to take pay for them in cotton seed. When these seeds arrived here in January, we put a price on them that was actual cost to us, $1.30 per bushel for certified DPL #11-A tested, ceresin treated, first quality cotton seed, 95 per cent germination. These seeds have not sold at all. We have had an advertisement in the paper every week since they arrived here, and on Tuesday of this week we got the "knock out" blow on these seeds which we thought would save our farmer friends $2,500, and give them a better quality seed than they have been buying. This final blow Tuesday was in this way: A farmer came to see us about some cotton seed and we quoted him and showed him the seed, and he went away declaring he would not buy them—he had rather go up town and buy them at $2.00 per bushel, and so far as we know he did go up town and buy them for $2.00 per bushel. So, we proceeded to sell these seeds in Memphis where they know good seed.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Representatives of labor and the trucking industry joined an executive of a manufacturing concern Wednesday in opposing the Patman bill to tax interstate chain stores.

C. M. Baker, president of the International Typographical Union, told a house subcommittee the measure would levy a tax on initiative and efficiency, and place a premium upon mediocrity.

"You do not need to tax to destroy," he said. "Whenever one of the concerns affected by this bill ceases to serve the public and to continuously 'tell' the public what it has to offer and where it is offered and at what prices, it will pass from the picture."

Baker said 51 daily newspapers suspended publication last year, and that the Patman bill forcing chain stores to close because of prohibitive taxation, probably would accelerate such newspaper suspension by removing an important source of advertising revenue.

The Lapin Products company's Newark (N. J.) plant, a delegate from the plant's employees, urged defeat of the measure.

The company manufactures a diversity of products for variety stores. Hommer said large scale, economical year-round production was possible only because of the tremendous outlet through chain stores, which absorbed about 80 per cent of the company's output. Independent concerns, he said, were able to get the remaining 20 per cent at attractive prices only because of the sustained large-scale production made possible by chain organizations.

Allen J. Wilson, Boston representative of the American Trucking Association, said thousands of jobs in the trucking industry were endangered by the threat to chain stores contained in the Patman bill, which "would add such a burden to the chain stores as might result in their elimination."
